Index of Articles upon American Local History,

IN HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS IN THE BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

It was primarily intended to index for this list only serial historical publications. In accordance with a later decision many state and county histories, in which the town or county history is separately treated, are included. Drake's Middlesex County, and Egle's History of Pennsylvania, are prominent examples of this class of publications. The local histories are there written by specialists.

Index of Articles upon American Local History,

IN HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS IN THE BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

It was primarily intended to index for this list only serial historical publications. In accordance with a later decision many state and county histories, in which the town or county history is separately treated, are included. Drake's Middlesex County and Egle's History of Pennsylvania are prominent examples of this class of publications. The local histories are there written by specialists.

The Resignation of William W. Greenough.

Since the publication of the last Bulletin, the Boston Public Library has met with a great loss in the resignation of Mr. WILLIAM W. GREENOUGH, who has been a member of the Board of Trustees for thirty-two years, and for twenty-two years its President. Mr. GREENOUGH brought to the service of this institution a knowledge of languages and literature and a business experience which qualified him, as few Americans have been qualified, for the work of building up and administering a Library. He seems to have regarded his connection with it as a trust which demanded, as it received, his constant attention. None but those who have witnessed it can know the amount of time and thought which he has given, and none but those who know the labor involved in the forming of a great Library and its successful management can properly estimate the debt of gratitude due to Mr. GREENOUGH.

The following Proceedings and Correspondence will be of interest to the friends of the Public Library.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN,
APRIL 2, 1888.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
April 2, 1888.

To the Honorable the City Council:—

GENTLEMEN, — It is with regret that I have to communicate to the City Council the resignation of Mr. W. W. Greenough as Trustee of the Public Library. Mr. Greenough has served in that capacity for thirty-two years, twenty-two as President of the Board. It is seldom that an official of the City Government has been able to render such long, faithful, and gratuitous services. For more than a generation Mr. Greenough has devoted a good portion of his time to the building up of our Public Library, and since his connection with it, from small beginnings, that institution has grown to be the most prominent free public library in the world. I think that it would be very appropriate for the City Council to pass suitable resolutions in recognition of such long and faithful services.

Respectfully submitted,

HUGH O'BRIEN, Mayor.

Laid on the table temporarily, on motion of Alderman Murphy.

Later in the session the communication was taken from the table, on motion of Alderman Murphy, who then offered the following:—

Whereas the City Council are informed of the resignation of William W. Greenough as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Public Library, after a term of service covering the period of thirty-two years, —

Resolved, That the City Council of Boston hereby expresses its appreciation of the valuable services that have been rendered to the city by William W. Greenough, in connection with the founding and growth of the Public Library, during his long-continued service as a member of the Board of Trustees, and on the termination of his labors upon the said Board the City Council desires to extend to him its best wishes for his future welfare.

Passed by a unanimous rising vote. Sent down.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMON COUNCIL,
APRIL 12, 1888.

The Mayor's message was received informing the City Council of the resignation of W. W. Greenough as a Trustee of the Public Library, and suggesting the passage of resolutions in recognition of his long and faithful services.

Placed on file.

The preamble and resolve expressing the appreciation of the City Council of the services rendered the city by Mr. Greenough in connection with the founding and growth of the Public Library, etc., were read twice and put upon their passage.

MR. BROOKS, of Ward 10. — Mr. President, I did not intend to speak upon this matter, but certainly it affords me great pleasure to add a slight tribute to Mr. Greenough, and to express the appreciation which we all must feel for his services in connection with the Public Library of Boston. As I understand, the Public Library was started in 1848, and Mr. Greenough has been one of the Trustees since 1855, and its president since 1866. I think that every gentleman in this Council, and every citizen of Boston who has had anything to do with the Public Library, will bear testimony to the uniform courtesy and intelligence which have marked Mr. Greenough's connection with the Library.

On motion of Mr. Hoar, of Ward 20, it was ordered that when the question is taken it be by a rising vote.

MR. LOMASNEY, of Ward 8. — I rise at this time, Mr. President, to speak more particularly in behalf of a class of people who have been brought in contact with the subordinates of the Public Library, or perhaps the servants of Mr. Greenough as Trustee, we, sir, who perhaps represent a portion of our young men and women who get a great deal of their education after they leave the common schools of this City. These young men and women have found the Public Library one of the best and greatest institutions which the city, or even the country, could have furnished, in which young men and women have an opportunity to complete their education by reading and self-instruction, after they have received the elementary branches in the common schools. And, sir, as a testimonial to the merits of Mr. Greenough's management of the Public Library, it is a pleasant duty to bear cheerful testimony to the fact that whether the visitor to the library was a ragged urchin, or wore kid gloves, he or she was uniformly treated with the utmost courtesy and attention; and it is proper to say that Mr. Greenough did much towards making the Library and its management what it is. Mr. President and gentlemen, coming in part from the old North End, I want to add my tribute to the services of this gentleman, and to thank him personally, on behalf of the people of the section of the city which I represent, for his services so well and cheerfully given for his native city.

MR. RICHARDS, of Ward 11. — Mr. President, I cannot add anything to what has been said by the gentlemen who sit on either side of me. Yet I think it is a matter of great interest to call to memory the fact that when Mr. Greenough took the position on the Board of Trustees of the Public Library, in 1855, the corner-stone of the building where the Library is now located was laid. It is certainly a remarkable fact that he leaves the Board of Trustees just as the new Library building on the Back Bay is about to be erected. I think it is a fitting crown to the thirty-two years of service that he should be able to see this beautiful building about to be erected on such a beautiful site on the Back Bay. I believe we all feel that in leaving the Board of Trustees Mr. Greenough bears the marks of a life well spent, of virtue and truth well tried, and wise experience.

The preamble and resolution were passed in concurrence, with a unanimous rising vote.

They were approved by the Mayor April 16, 1888.

PUBLIC LIBRARY, BOSTON, April 30, 1888.

TO WILLIAM W. GREENOUGH, Esq. : —

DEAR SIR, — We, the officers and employés of the Boston Public Library, have heard with sincere regret of your resignation as one of its Trustees.

Some of us have been in the service of the Library no inconsiderable part of the time which covers your administration of its affairs as President of the Board of Trustees; and all of us sufficiently long to become acquainted with the nature and value of the services which you have rendered to the Library.

We wish to assure you that we have a grateful sense of the interest which you have always manifested in our welfare, and that as you take leave of us you will go accompanied with our sincerest wishes for your welfare and happiness.

Signed by all the officers and employés of the Central Library and Branch Libraries.

BOSTON, May 10, 1888.

HON. MELLE CHAMBERLAIN, Librarian Public Library : —

MY DEAR SIR, — At the close of my official relations to the Library, it affords me great pleasure to receive the valuable expression of personal regard in the form conveyed to me by the officers and employés of the institution.

The tasteful volume, containing their signatures, is the more important as it ensures safe preservation. It will never fail to recall the pleasant conditions which have existed for so many years between myself and the large force of earnest and busy workers in the various departments of the Library service.

Will you please receive for yourself, and express to all the signers of the document, my personal thanks for this most unexpected and gratifying manifestation of their kind remembrance. Nor do I forget the agreeable personal intercourse with yourself since your advent to your responsible office.

I remain, as always,

Sincerely your friend,

WM. W. GREENOUGH.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES,
MAY 12, 1888.

The Trustees of the Boston Public Library, on the occasion of the retiring from their Board, upon which he has served for more than a generation, of their late President,

William W. Greenough, Esq.,

desire to place upon their records an expression of their grateful acknowledgment of the long, faithful, and valuable service he has rendered to this institution, and a tribute of their personal regard for him as an associate and friend, therefore —

Resolved, That the citizens of Boston owe a great debt of gratitude to Mr. Greenough for his disinterested labors in directing the progress and administering the affairs of her Public Library during his twenty-two years' service as President of its Board of Trustees.

Resolved, That a large share of the credit and success which have made the Boston Public Library a model and exemplar for all similar institutions that have been since established in this country and abroad, is due to the sagacity and labors of its late President.

Resolved, That we wish to bear emphatic testimony to the courtesy and kindness ever manifested towards us by our late President; that we hereby express to him our sincere regret that our pleasant personal intercourse in our official duties has come to an end; and that we most heartily wish for him renewed health and many happy and prosperous years in his retirement.

Resolved, That the Clerk of the Corporation be instructed to communicate a copy of these resolutions to Mr. Greenough.

299 MARLBOROUGH ST.,
15th May, 1888.

SAMUEL A. B. ABBOTT, Esq., President Trustees Public Library : —

MY DEAR SIR, — I have received with deep sensibility the preamble and resolutions of the Trustees of the Public Library which have been transmitted to me.

My original appointment to the Board was entirely unsought by me, and was accepted solely for the performance of a public duty according to the best of my ability; but during my long connection with the institution, as it grew in strength and usefulness, the duty became a labor of love.

The expressions of personal regard from those friends with whom I have so long been associated are most gratifying, and are warmly reciprocated by me.

In carrying forward the great trust imposed upon the Board, first by the City Government, and afterwards increased by the Commonwealth, it is matter of congratulation that its action on every question submitted for its consideration during these years has been substantially unanimous. I remain, dear sir, with warm regard for yourself and your associates,

Sincerely yours,

WM. W. GREENOUGH.

Contents. -- 1. The memorials of the English and French commissaries concerning the limits of Nova Scotia or Acadia. Folded map. 2. The memorials of the French commissaries concerning St. Lucia.

This work, said to have been compiled by Charles Townshend, was published by the Lords Committee of Trade as an exhibition of the English case, to offset the compilation published at Paris in 1755 under the title "Mémoires des commissaires du roi et de ceux de sa majesté britannique sur les possessions et les droits respectifs des deux couronnes en Amérique," which presented the French case. The memorials in the French work are reproduced in the original, and in most cases with translations in the English editions.

The English papers are signed by W. Shirley and W. Mildmay, and the French, by La Galissonnière and De Silhouette. The volume on Nova Scotia, furnishes important material concerning the geography of Maine, New Brunswick, Canada and Nova Scotia.

This paper was instituted for the avowed purpose of assailing Queen Caroline and her supporters. Theodore Hook was the first editor. The paper at once attained a great circulation. The first five issues were several times reprinted, and numbers one and two were stereotyped. The death of Queen Charlotte in 1821 removed the main purpose of the paper, and it in time became in a measure an organ of the High Church and Tory clergy, under the editorship and proprietorship of Rev. Dr. Biber. James Grant, in his history of the newspaper press [2475:50.3], says that "For some years past the John Bull has surpassed all its weekly contemporaries in the extent, the accuracy, and the interest of its ecclesiastical information; while in relation to purely political matters of importance it has within the last three or four years frequently surprised the public by exclusive information."

Contains a title-page with the imprint Boston, 1804, as being that of the original edition. Mr. Ford, in his Bibliotheca Hamiltoniana, expresses the opinion that it is a fraudulent title, since persistent search has failed to discover a copy of any edition other than the one in the Hamilton club series. Mr. Hoffman, who constituted the Hamilton club, "probably reprinted the life from some newspaper." The original is contained in a series of articles entitled "Illustrative comments upon the character and influence of the late General Alexander Hamilton," published in the Independent chronicle, Boston, Aug. 16, 20, 23, and 27, 1804.

Index of Articles upon American Local History.

IN HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS IN THE BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

It was primarily intended to index for this list only serial historical publications. In accordance with a later decision many state and county histories, in which the town or county history is separately treated, are included. Drake's Middlesex County and Egle's History of Pennsylvania are prominent examples of this class of publications. The local histories are there written by specialists.

In 1885 the United States government published what purported to be A Descriptive Catalogue of the Government Publications of the United States, September 5, 1774-March 4, 1881, which should have rendered any such list as the present unnecessary; but that elaborate work was misnamed, as it is at best but an index to government publications, and for the period covered by this bibliography is little more than an imperfect index to the Journals of the Continental Congress, and has, therefore, been of no assistance in compiling this catalogue. From Sabin's Dictionary of Books relating to America; Thomas's and Haven's Catalogue of Publications in the United States, 1639-1775, and Hildburn's Issues of the Pennsylvania Press, I have derived aid, more especially from the latter. I also owe thanks to Dr. Samuel A. Green, Hon. A. R. Spofford, Mr. F. A. Bancroft, Mr. Charles A. Cutter, Mr. W. Eames, Mr. Bumford Samuels, Mr. Lindsay Swift, Mr. William Kelby, and Mr. J. W. M. Lee, for assistance in the compilation.

The arrangement is strictly chronological, under the date of the introduction by the committee, or the adoption by the Congress, and those without date, and collected publications are placed at the end of the year to which they belong. The initials at the end of the description indicate certain public libraries in which the publication can be consulted.

An agreement between the twelve Colonies not to trade with England, drafted by Thomas Cushing, Isaac Low, Thomas Mifflin, Richard Henry Lee, and Thomas Johnson, Jun.

"Ordered, That this Association be committed to the press, and one hundred and twenty copies struck off." Journal as printed in Force, fourth series, 1.

The original document is reproduced in Force's Archives, fourth series, 1, 915; and a [burlesque] "versified and set to music" version was printed by Rivington in New York. There were also many pamphlets issued at the time, discussing it from all points of view.

Two letters from the Congress, one to the "People of Great Britain" (drafted by John Jay), and the other to the "Inhabitants of the Colonies" (drafted by Richard Henry Lee), which were reported by a committee of three, — Richard Henry Lee, William Livingston, and John Jay.

This title is not in Hildeburn, but, misled by Sabin (40,508), he gives a title of what is apparently the same pamphlet. Sabin was in error in the date, and the true description is given herein. No. 54.

"Ordered, That the Address to the people of Great Britain, and the Memorial to the Inhabitants of the British Colonies be immediately committed to the press; and that no more than one hundred and twenty copies of each be struck off, without further orders from the Congress." Journal.

The text of the letter to the "Inhabitants of the Colonies" was slightly altered in the subsequent issues, and copies of this edition are sometimes found with MS. corrections of the changes made.

6. A Letter to the People of Great Britain from the Delegates of the American Congress in Philadelphia. [London:] Andrews. 8^o.

This title is taken from the "Monthly Catalogue" in the Critical Review for January, 1775 (xxxix, 73), where it is noticed as follows:—

"... It is a mixture of compliment and expostulation, accompanied with complaints relative to the establishment of the Catholic religion in Canada, and to the supposed violation of their privileges in the article of taxation; interspersed with ominous anticipations of the future slavery of the whole British dominion, in consequence of the plan of government adopted by administration. With respect to the Quebec Bill, it was only fulfilling engagements which we were solemnly bound to maintain by treaty of peace, and for the performance of which the national faith had been pledged. In regard to the point of taxation, we might have expected that the Americans would enter largely into the discussion of the subject, upon political principles; and that they likewise would have at least attempted to invalidate the force of the several precedents produced to evince their own acknowledgement or former acquiescence in the supreme authority of the British Parliament. Nothing of this kind is, however, to be found in the Letter before us; a most material and unaccountable defect, if we consider that it was written at a time when the delegates, by whom it is sent, were upon the eve of adopting such extraordinary measures, as may endanger the whole system of British and American commerce."

Cushing, Lee and Dickinson were appointed, October 21, a committee to prepare this letter, the draft of which, both by common acceptance and by the statement in Dickinson's "Writings" (published in 1801, under his supervision), is referred to Dickinson's pen; yet John Adams (Diary in "Works" II., 392), on October 4, writes, "General Lee came to my lodgings, and showed me Address from the C. to the people of Canada, which he had"—or, eleven days before Dickinson was elected to the Congress, and eighteen days before the committee was appointed.

Oct. 26. Petition to the King.

13. (133) / To Peyton Randolph, Esq. [Philadelphia: W. and T. Bradford. 1774.] 8^o. pp. [133]—144. P.L.

Printed as an appendix to No. 39, but copies were separately issued. It consists of the letter from Gage to Randolph and the Petition to the King.

The Petition was reported to Congress by a committee consisting of John Adams, Thomas Johnson, Patrick Henry, John Rutledge, Richard Henry Lee, and John Dickinson, and the draft is claimed for both of the latter two: for Lee in his Life by R. H. Lee, Jr., and for Dickinson in his Writings. The fair inference seems to be that Lee prepared the first draft, reported to Congress October 21, which, not meeting with their approval, was recommended, with Dickinson added to the committee. The second report was probably a revival of Lee's draft by Dickinson. In Adams' Diary (Works II., 396) it appears that he and Henry were in consultation over the Petition, and it is plain that all the papers of the Continental Congress, though of necessity written by one man, were the combined logic and opinions of the committee, and the honor belongs to no individual member.

CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

17. 8°. pp. (4), 23, 36. P.L.
18. 8°. pp. (4), 11, 50. P.
19. 8°. pp. (4), 23, 50. P.H.S.

The first collation given is, I believe, the first edition of this famous pamphlet, being "made up," apparently, from the remainders of Nos. 2 and 5, with the addition of the Bill of Rights and List of Grievances. The Letter to the Inhabitants of Quebec (No. 7), though printed after this was issued, and having a separate title is intended to be a part of the "Extracts."

Nothing perhaps shows more thoroughly the intense interest with which the proceedings of the Congress were awaited, than the following list of editions:—

20. Extracts / from the / Votes and Proceedings / of the American / Continental / Congress, / Held at Philadelphia, September 5, 1774, / Containing / The Bill of Rights, a List of Grievances, Occasional Resolves, the Association, an / Address to the People of Great-Britain, / A Memorial to the Inhabitants of the / British American Colonies, and a Petition / to the King. / To which is added, / The Proceedings of the / Provincial Convention, / Held at Philadelphia, January 23, 1775. / Published by order of the Provincial Convention. / Philadelphia: / Printed by William and Thomas Bradford, / at the London Coffee House. / M,DCC,LXXV. / 8°. pp. 80. P.H.S.

Fleet, in Cornhill. / M.DCC,LXXIV. 8°. pp. 49. M.

22. 8°. pp. 56. C.
The second issue contains the "Suffolk Resolutions," the "Letter to the Inhabitants of Quebec," and several minor resolutions, which were not included in the previous editions.

23. Extracts / from the / Votes and Proceedings / Of the American Continental / Congress, / Held at Philadelphia on the / 5th of September, 1774. / Containing / The Bill of Rights, a List of Grievances, Occasional Resolves, the Association, an / Address to the People of Great-Britain, / and a Memorial to the Inhabitants of the / British American Colonies. / Published by Order of the Congress. / Philadelphia, Printed: / Boston, Re-printed: And sold by John Boyle / in Marlborough-Street, and Mills and Hicks in / School-Street. 1774. 8°. pp. 43. In spite of the statement on the title page, this volume contains none, (the Petition to the King excepted), of the papers there mentioned.

"The late pamphlet, entitled, 'Extracts from the Votes and Proceedings of the American Continental Congress,' contained only a Part of the Journal of that Congress. The whole Journal has since been published in America; but it was thought proper to reprint only such parts in this Pamphlet, as were omitted in the former, in order that those Gentlemen who have purchased the 'Extracts' may make their Copies complete, if they chuse it. The two pamphlets contain the entire Journal of the Proceedings of the Congress."

"Dr. Franklin, about the 15th or 16th of Dec. 1774, received these Proceedings of the Congress, with the Petition to the King dated the 26th October previous. The times were growing very serious, and it was thought best to let Almon publish them immediately. The effect was startling, for the pamphlet proclaimed to the discriminating British public (if there was at that time such a body) that the English language had acquired new vigour and clearness in being transplanted to the Western shores. The pith, point and soundness of these public papers astonished the statesmen and confounded the politicians, and at the same time delighted the friends of the Colonies particularly Lord Chatham and Lord Camden." — HENRY STEVENS.

Notes.

NEW LIBRARY BUILDING. — On Wednesday, Nov. 28, 1888, the corner-stone of the New Library building, on Copley square, was laid. The exercises, which were held in the New Old South Church, consisted of opening remarks by Samuel A. B. Abbott, Esq., president of the Board of Trustees; prayer by the Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon; a poem by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes; oration by the Hon. Frederick O. Prince; and remarks by His Honor Mayor O'Brien. By the terms of the contract, the basement and the first story of the new building are to be finished in August, 1889.

BUST OF MAYOR O'BRIEN. — The Library has been presented, by the Hon. M. M. Cuniff, with a bronze bust of His Honor Mayor Hugh O'Brien. It has been placed in the Art Room.

BULLETINS OUT OF PRINT. — The following Bulletins are entirely out of print: Nos. 1, 2, 3, 19, 20, 21, 22, 24, 28, 46, 54, 55, 56, 69, 72; also indexes to Volumes 1 and 4. Gifts of any of these desiderata will be welcome.

GIFTS. — Among the gifts to the Public Library during the past year have been the following: From the Rev. C. D. Bradlee, 36 volumes, 896 pamphlets; Estate of Mrs. J. J. Dixwell, 274 volumes, 148 pamphlets; J. P. Earwaker, of Pensarn, North Wales, 6 volumes of the "Court Leet records of the Manor of Manchester"; Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, 238 volumes, 32 pamphlets; Abbott Lawrence, 6 volumes, 214 pamphlets; Estate of Charles E. F. Lyon, 170 volumes, 116 pamphlets; Mrs. R. Anne Nichols, 86 volumes; Mrs. Otis Norcross, 144 volumes, 34 pamphlets; the Duke of Northumberland, 2 volumes of the "Annals of the House of Percy"; the City of Paris, 2 volumes of the "Histoire générale de Paris"; Estate of Nathaniel G. Parker, 74 volumes, 121 pamphlets; the Dowager Lady Vernon, Lord Vernon's edition of Dante, in 4 volumes; E. H. Ware, 98 volumes, 326 pamphlets.

In connection with the gift of the City of Paris, it is interesting to recall that the first twenty-two accessions to the Library came from the same source.

MR. WILLIAM H. FOSTER, the oldest member of the Catalogue Department, died November 2. He began to work upon the catalogues of the Boston Public Library nearly thirty years ago, at the office of the City Printers. In the year 1860 he was appointed Proof reader for this Library, and placed in charge of the preparation of the catalogues of the Lower Hall and Branch Libraries. These catalogues owe their merit very largely to his careful and accurate work.

At a meeting of the Trustees, it was Resolved, That the Trustees have learned with sincere regret of the death, on the second of November, of Mr. William H. Foster, who entered the service of the library, September, 1860, and by more than twenty-eight years of devoted, efficient service won the respect of the Trustees, and of all his associates.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased.

ON the same day, at the City Hospital, died John S. Morrison, for six years assistant in the Shelf Department. He was faithful to the interests of the Library, and gained the esteem of all who knew him.

Index of Articles upon American Local History,

IN HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS IN THE BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

(From Bulletin No. 78, and concluded.)

It was primarily intended to index for this list only serial historical publications. In accordance with a later decision many state and county histories, in which the town or county history is separately treated, are included. Drake's Middlesex County and Egle's History of Pennsylvania are prominent examples of this class of publications. The local histories are there written by specialists.

TO THE TRUSTEES: —

The question recently asked by a correspondent in one of the city journals, whether the Boston Public Library possesses an autograph of William Shakspeare? has been referred to the Librarian for an answer.

This correspondent may have heard some rumor on the subject, or he may have assumed that, in the fitness of things, one of the largest and best Shakspearian collections extant ought to possess an original autograph of the great dramatist; for in the Barton collection, besides the four folios and many of the original quartos, together with nearly every edition known in any language, are to be found the original autograph Prospectus of the famous Boydel Shakspeare and the book of subscribers on parchment, which contains the signatures of George III., Queen Charlotte, the Prince of Wales, and many Shakspearian scholars.

Be this as it may, the Library undoubtedly possesses a signature and a single line which purport to have been written by Shakspeare; but whether they were actually so written is not susceptible of actual proof, nor, as I think, is it of absolute disproof.

It is a question of probabilities; and I propose to set forth some facts and reasons which may assist in its determination.

When the genuineness of any handwriting is in question, the testimony of witnesses to the act, the judgment of experts, and the character and pedigree of the document are all admissible in evidence, and may be fairly required unless their absence can be accounted for.

The authenticity of the only three known autographs of Shakspeare about which it is impossible to cavil depends upon their pedigree. No one living ever saw him write them, or anything else, and there are no other specimens of his writing answering all the conditions of absolute certainty with which they can be compared. These three signatures are affixed to so many separate sheets of his will, dated March 25, 1616, shortly before his death, April 16, which was found where, if he made one, it ought to be found, in the archives of the Prerogative Office in Doctors Commons, in which it was duly proved as appears by the certificate of the proper officer, and where it has ever since remained. These facts reasonably preclude the possibility of forgery. Of two other signatures of which forgery is hardly predicable, though not impossible, one is on the counterpart of a deed of a house in Blackfriars, purchased by Shakspeare March 10, 1613, now in the London Library, for which it was purchased by the city authorities for £145, in 1843. The other is on a mortgage of the same property, March 11, and was purchased by the British Museum, in 1858, for £315. The pedigree of these documents cannot be traced earlier than the middle of the last century, but both are enrolled in the proper office, and without doubt both are originals.

And so, I think, though it has been disputed, is the signature in the Florio Montaigne, Plate VII., purchased for £100 by the British Museum, in 1838. But this is without a pedigree before 1780, and its genuineness rests on the judgment of experts, and on comparison with signatures known to be original. These six signatures are shown in Plates V., VI., VII.

The Library signature has no pedigree, and is found in a volume of North's Plutarch of 1603, though it is not claimed that it was written in that book by Shakspeare as evidence of ownership, or for any other reason.

The history of the volume is this: It was brought to the Library, together with a first folio of Ben Jonson, in the autumn of 1880, by a Mr. Samuel Gasking, an Englishman from London, who claimed to be a proof-reader seeking employment, and said that he had several old volumes picked up in a London second-hand book-shop, which he was willing to dispose of at reasonable prices.

As the Library lacked these volumes they were purchased at something less than the prices usually quoted in English sale-catalogues. Mr. Gasking drew the Librarian's attention to a signature and other writing which he thought might be that of Shakspeare; but he did not seek to enhance the price on that account. After Mr. Gasking's departure, the Librarian carefully examined the Plutarch and the Shakspeare writing; and having been for many years familiar with autographs, ink and paper, European and American, from the time of Henry VII., he formed an opinion in regard to the writing in question, which was laid aside with a memorandum of the facts above stated.

It was laid aside; but it has now been taken up again, for besides answering as nearly as may be the question referred to above, the Trustees think that the Library ought at least to preserve in its printed documents the history of an interesting volume, together with the facts and reasons which bear upon the genuineness of the signature written as "Wilm Shakspeare," and of the writing which follows it.

When this copy of North's Plutarch came to the Library, though it was complete, it was in bad condition. It was in the original binding, but the sewing had given way, the fly-leaves were gone, the text was considerably rumpled and otherwise so disordered that it was sent to the bindery for repairs, with instructions to preserve the original order of the contents.

The volume measures $12\frac{1}{2}$ in length, $8\frac{3}{8}$ in width, and $2\frac{1}{2}$ in thickness. The title-page much reduced in size, is seen on Plates I. and II. Those familiar with books — especially folios and quartos — of the seventeenth century need not be told that the inside of their covers often shows the boards, the lining leaves, if they ever adhered to them, having become detached so as to expose usually, as shown in Plates I. and II., first, a fold of parchment about two inches wide, running the entire length of the hinge; and, second, two or more paper leaves of the same width and length, all of which would be concealed from view if the lining leaf were pasted to the board, and would be exposed if it were detached. After examining many such volumes in the Public Library, the Librarian is in doubt whether it was customary to paste this leaf to the board, as is now invariably done, or to leave it loose to turn freely as a fly-leaf. It is also matter of common observation that the parchments and short paper leaves above described are generally covered with writing, often portions of legal documents which must have been written before the volume was bound, and which indicate by their general character that they were from scriveners' offices.

When the Plutarch — which there is no pretence or probability that Shakspeare ever owned or saw — came to the Public Library, the strips of parchment and one of paper at the end of the volume were in their original condition, covering the full length of the hinge; but the others were short; that which contained the name of Shakspeare at the beginning of the volume being little more than half length, as is shown in Plates I. and II. Possibly it was no longer when the volume was bound. In repairing the volume all these parchments and short strips were placed outside of the new lining and fly-leaves, as is also shown.

The paper bearing the name of Shakspeare is a fold organically a part of the volume, as appeared by the sewing, when it was purchased by the Library; but at what time Shakspeare's name was written in it is a more important question.

The strips at the end of the volume contain writing which must have been there when the volume was bound. The words

quod natura dedit
tollere nemo potest,

in Plate IV., apparently a parody on

Quod natura negat, reddere nemo potest, from Cor. Gallus Maximianus, Eleg. V. 54, are so near to the hinge which they face that it is not likely — even if it is possible — that they were written after the book was bound. The words "Cur honor quaeris," a part of two lines not easily read, seen in Plate III., may have been so written — though it is hardly probable that they would have been written in such an out-of-the-way place.

These writings and the name of "Wilm Shakspeare, hundred and twenty poundes," though not in the same ink, are in the ink and handwriting of the seventeenth century, and probably — certainly, if the linings were ever pasted to the inside cover — were concealed from view until the linings became detached. From these circumstances it is probable that they are very old, — anterior in date to any of the known forgeries, — and that they were placed where they are now found at a time when there was no inducement to forge them.

There is another circumstance which bears — though not conclusively — upon the age of the writing. In Plates I. and II., a worm-hole may be seen in the parchment, as well as on the title-page, corresponding to a similar one just before the word "and" in the words "hundred and twenty poundes," which penetrates three hundred and ten pages of the text. This in itself establishes nothing, unless we first learn the date of the perforation; but at whatever time the worm worked, it is clear that it was after the writing; for if it had been before, the pen would have caught on the edges of the hole and caused some irregularity of line, which is firm and sharply defined on both sides of the aperture.

It may also be observed that the position of the writing in the volume is unusual — not in the place where the owner of the volume would have chosen to make a memorandum, nor a forger who wished to deceive.

The question still remains — is it an autograph, and is it Shakspeare's?

The answer depends on circumstantial evidence: —

1. The volume itself bears date 1603, and was probably bound many years before Shakspeare's death.

2. The paper which bears the signature is part of the original constitution of the volume, and is of the same date as the binding.

3. The ink with which the signature was written, in the judgment of experts acquainted with modern inks manufactured to resemble those which are old, is genuine ink of the early part of the seventeenth century; and if so, then,

4. The signature itself must have been written in that century, though at what time it is impossible to say, but before the parchment, the signature, and the text had been perforated by a worm.

5. In the judgment of three experts,—collectors of autographs with long experience in such matters,—the writing is an autograph of some one who called himself William Shakspeare. That is to say, it is an original signature; not one man's name written by another, nor an imitation. The value of such expert judgments depends on the skill acquired by their possessors, which enables them, as it does bank-tellers, dealers in coins, art connoisseurs, and others, to detect the genuine from the spurious upon grounds which they are not always able to explain, but which, nevertheless, they, and others who employ them, rely upon in matters of considerable importance, pecuniary and otherwise.

6. The signature itself bears a strong resemblance to the known genuine signatures of Shakspeare; and where it departs from them, the fact may perhaps be accounted for by the time when it must have been written by him, if genuine.

Of course it is possible, though it does not seem at all probable to the experts who have examined it, that the writing may have been an entry made by some other person in some connection with the name of Shakspeare. It possesses too many of the characteristics of his autograph to have been that of a scrivener. It need not be said that the handwriting of the people of any age and country possesses certain characteristics in common. A good illustration of this is found in Shakspeare's will itself. The name of William Shakspeare as written in the body of the will by the scrivener is in some respects quite like Shakspeare's autograph; and so, though in less degree, is the filing endorsement of the clerk of the Prerogative Court. But no one familiar with genuine autographs would mistake either of these for such; still less would an expert be deceived by any of the imitation inks. They are aware that color, and other indicia of antiquity, may be imitated; but not in such a way as to deceive those skilful in detecting such imitations.

Forgeries to a practised eye show the weakness of imitation, as in No. 8, Plate VIII., one of Ireland's forgeries. They are of different degrees of skill; but none of that degree which deceives a thorough expert. The copyist of an autograph, as the copyist of a painting, fails to catch the freedom of the original, and fatally errs, either by variation, or becomes stiff by servile tracing. Forgers generally deviate from the original so far as not to excite suspicion of tracing, but never needlessly raise questions by a wide departure from well-known and easily accessible originals.

In the Library signature there is such a departure, unaccountable if it is regarded as a forgery, and difficult to be accounted for if it is regarded as an original autograph. That will be considered hereafter.

It is not a very important consideration, but worth noting, however, that the writing in the book is found where Shakspeare himself would not have placed it, nor a forger have written it. If intended as evidence of Shakspeare's ownership of the volume, a forger would have written it where such evidence is usually found, at the top of the fly-leaf, or on the title-page, where Richard Hawkins wrote his name, as seen in Plates I. and II., and he would have avoided the unnecessary addition of the words, "hundred and twenty pounds."

We may reasonably say that the words "Wllm Shakspeare, hundred and twenty poundes,"

and "Cur honor quaeris," were written on papers contemporary with Shakspeare. They were also written in the ink and characteristic chirography of his time. How such papers, partly legal and partly literary, came together, is unknown. If, as has been suggested, they were from some scrivener's office, why should Shakspeare's name be found among them? It would hardly do to say that it is because, as has been conjectured from his familiarity with technical law terms and phrases, he was at one time a lawyer's clerk. Nor does the form in which the entry appears—that of underwriting on a policy of insurance—warrant the conclusion that the paper is part of such an instrument signed by Shakspeare, which found its way to a lawyer's office. It is not known that he used any of his capital in that way, though such a conjecture receives color from the familiarity with ships and sea-terms which his dramas show. But these papers are together, and apparently have been for nearly three centuries; nor is it more strange that one of them should be in the hand of Shakspeare than in the hand of any of his literary contemporaries. Yet the question remains, did Shakspeare write his name and the words, "hundred and twenty poundes"?

This leads to an analysis of the writings and comparisons of them with those known to be Shakspeare's.

But before entering upon such an analysis it may be observed that the field of comparison of the Library signature with the known originals is narrow, being limited to those written between 1613 and 1616, all of which show such a lack of facility in handwriting as would almost preclude the possibility of Shakspeare's having written the dramas attributed to him, so great is the apparent illiteracy of his signatures. We have no specimens of his handwriting before disease, or the disuse of the pen, had apparently impaired that facility of writing which must be assumed as the acquirement of an author so voluminous as Shakspeare.

But although the range of comparison is narrow, it is better than if it were wide, since it shows that the five signatures, three of which were written on the same day, and all in the last three years of his life, vary greatly from each other; and these inconsistent variations from the same pen prepare us to expect even greater variations from specimens of an earlier period, especially if any should be found to be written in a freer hand. Toulmin Smith in combatting, against Sir Frederick Madden, the genuineness of the signature in the Florio Montaigne, No. 6, says that "all Shakspeare's 'S's' are begun from the right, take an easy sweep to the left, and so back to the right and to the left again, and then upwards; while this 'S' [in the Montaigne] is begun from the left, and gives us such an 'S' as never was seen." His meaning is seen in observing the formation of the "S" in Nos. 1, 2, and 5, and the difference is obvious. But is he not clearly wrong in respect to No. 4, written at the same time with Nos. 3 and 5?

One can hardly fail to notice that the writing of Shakspeare's name in the Library signature is organically the same as that in all the known original signatures, with certain variations from them, it is true; but yet not so great as those found among themselves. The real difficulty is between the first and last syllables of his name, in which there appears to be a superfluous "s." The "speare" also varies somewhat from that of the known signatures. In the best signature, — that on the last sheet of the will which was signed first, No. 5, — the "s" is apparently connected with the "k," as though he wrote it "ks." But this difficulty is lessened, if it does not disappear, after a careful examination of the formation of the "k" in Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 5, in all of which there are certain resemblances to that in the Library signature, and in all the "s" is detached. With the variation in these respects in the three signatures written on the same day, it would be rash to found a judgment on that ground against the genuineness of the Library signature.

If the Library signature is genuine, then unquestionably are the words "hundred and twenty poundes;" and in that case the Boston Public Library possesses more of Shakspeare's writing than has been found elsewhere; and if those words are in the hand of Shakspeare, then is the signature also. A comparison of this line with Shakspeare's known autograph, therefore, may throw light on the main question. Take the letter "h" in the word "hundred." At first sight it appears to be unlike the four latest of the known original signatures, but is strikingly and organically like that in No. 1, the earliest of the originals. And yet if we notice the same letter as written in No. 2, only a day later, we may see what latitude Shakspeare allowed himself in the formation of letters.

Another striking instance of essential identity may be seen by comparing the "y" in the word "By," No. 5, with the same letter in "twenty," of the Library writing, No. 7.

Again, compare the letter "p" in the name "Shakspeare," with the same letter in the word "poundes" of the Library writing, No. 7. Though written by the same hand, no two letters could be more unlike; but the "p" in "poundes" is almost identical with that in No. 5, the most elaborate and best of Shakspeare's signatures, and either may be substituted for the other without violence.

Indeed, nothing can be more striking than the result of a comparison of the same letters in all the signatures of Shakspeare. No two are precisely alike, and in most instances they are very dissimilar; and yet, organically, they are the same in all, or nearly all. This fact suggests caution in coming to a judgment adverse to any signature on the ground that it varies from known originals. Whether it be a privilege of genius never to write one's name twice alike, even on the same day, such is certainly the fact with Shakspeare.

The comparisons instituted might be continued more exhaustively, but those who care to do so can carry them on for themselves.

The Librarian is familiar with the literature of historical, literary, and autographical forgeries in England and America, as well as with the devices of their authors to manufacture circumstantial evidence and to disarm suspicion. These devices have often imposed upon the unwary, and temporarily misled even those who ought at once to have detected the imposition. Such facts ought to prevent hasty judgments. Nevertheless, in the absence of positive proof, the testimony of experts, though not to be regarded as conclusive, must be accepted provisionally, at least, as settling the question of probabilities.

In conclusion, the Librarian is clearly of the opinion that the Library autograph presents many reasons in favor of its genuineness, and too few objections to warrant an adverse judgment.
